What does the NZDC do for me?

We often hear the cry, "what does the New Zealand Darts Council do for me?" Why be a member? The answer is simple: "Because you are a darts player."

Every sport needs an organisation as a focal point - an organisation all players and administrators, Associations and regions can turn to.

The central organisation represents every single member, whether a champion or a social club player. It organises the sport on a national basis for the benefit of all; it liaises and arranges representation in major world events.

It provides information to anyone who asks. It helps develop standards for the sport (dress, behaviour, playing and tournament rules, standard throwing distance etc.).

If you want to take up the chant ("What does the NZDC do for me?"), first ask yourself: "What do I do for NZDC?"

Do you communicate your needs? Do you ask for certain services?

Communication is a two-way street. The Directors and the Secretary cannot know what you would like to see happen unless you let them know.

Do you have an idea you think the NZDC could use? Tell us about it. Do you have an issue you need to have resolved? Ask for help. The same issue has probably been dealt with quite simply before, and your solution is probably very simple.

There are endless things you can do to communicate your needs and take advantage of your membership benefits.

A major problem is always lack of communication to local members, the grass roots of the sport. In many cases, important information is not passed on by local officials. Please display all newsletters etc. to all members.

All Associations regularly receive circulars about membership, with requests for information on local promotions etc. normally not many respond. Those who do are very positive and have some good ideas that have been responsible for increasing their membership. If everyone responds, the results will be of benefit to all.

The ball is in your court. Respond to requests from NZDC for your input and opinions. Make communication a two-way street and you may never have to ask again; "What does the NZDC do for me".
